To whom it may concern:

We had the opportunity to work with Future Inc. on the OSU Baseball Stadium project in 2019. At the time I reached out to Todd, the project was staring down the barrel of significant site logistic issues because the extreme rain the project had received was wreaking havoc on the infield subgrade. Todd came to the table and put together a plan to get the infield to an appropriate grade, with adequate drainage, such that construction traffic could productively and safely traverse the site. Todd's plan was good, but I think what impressed us most was the speed at which he moved through the project. He brought in quality equipment with quality operators and far exceeded our expectations on delivering a solid infield subgrade that all the trades could be productive on. We have since done more work with Todd and will continue to do so in the future.
